Clearview FCU and Pitt Athletics Present Donation to JDRF of Western Pennsylvania

Pittsburgh, Pa. – Clearview Federal Credit Union recently presented a $9,880 donation to JDRF of Western Pennsylvania as part of the Points for Pediatrics program with the University of Pittsburgh.

Through this program, Clearview pledged to donate $40 for each 3-point basket made by the Pitt men’s basketball team during the 2016-2017 regular season games. Throughout the season, Pitt players made a total of 247 three-point baskets, earning a $9,880 donation from Clearview.

On May 5, 2017, Clearview President & CEO Mark Brennan presented a check to Carol M. Yannuzzi, Executive Director for JDRF of Western Pennsylvania. To cheer on the cause, Pitt cheerleaders and Panther mascot Roc also attended the presentation, along with some JDRF families whose lives are impacted daily by Type 1 Diabetes.

This is the eighth year that Clearview has sponsored the Points for Pediatrics program with Pitt Athletics. Since 2010, Clearview has donated a total of $34,700 to JDRF of Western Pennsylvania through the Pitt Points for Pediatrics Program.

Carol M. Yannuzzi, Executive Director of JDRF, commented, “On behalf of all those touched by type 1 diabetes, I offer my sincere thanks to Clearview Federal Credit Union for this partnership and their generosity. I’d also like to thank the University of Pittsburgh Athletics program and the Pitt men’s basketball team. It was a great year for 3-point baskets, and we at JDRF are grateful! With this donation, we move closer to the JDRF vision of a world without type 1 diabetes.”

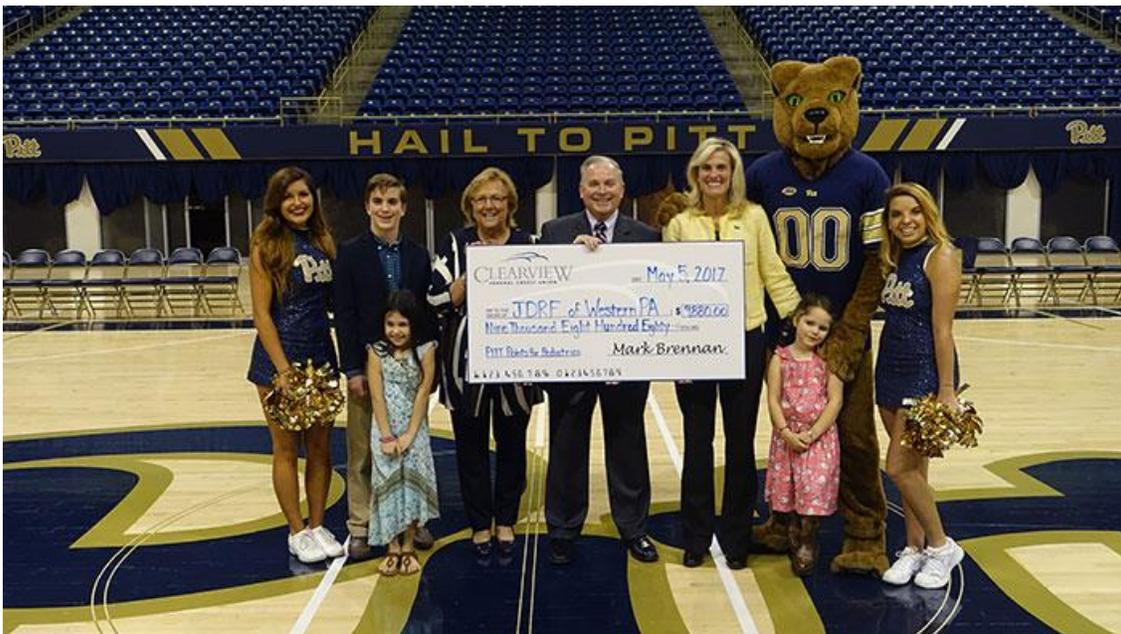

Clearview’s President & CEO Mark Brennan commented, “It’s hard to believe we’ve been a part of this wonderful program for eight years now. We’re always honored to support local charities like JDRF that make a difference in our community, and it’s been a pleasure to see the hard work of the Pitt players pay off in this way.”
